Brück on the Leitha River.

1. On 2 May 1951, no traffic or repair shop activity was observed at the garages southeast of the railroad station in Brück (P 49/X 77) on the Leitha River, nor were there any imprints of tank tracks.
2. Only a little activity was observed at the camp in the woods near Brück. No firing practice was conducted. A radio car with antenna was on a hill in the camp area. Motor vehicles seen in camp traffic included: truck leaving the camp; passenger car occupied by a colonel with red-bordered black epaulets and driving toward Kaisersteinbruch (P 48/X 67); and jeep entering the camp.
3. The old Komendantura on Fischamenderstrasse housed troops who wore red-bordered black epaulets. Sentries at the new Komendantura wore black-bordered red epaulets. Passenger car occupied by a major and two captains wearing black-bordered red epaulets, drove from the Komendantura toward Parndorf (P 48/X 77).

Moedling.

4. Officers entering and leaving the Technische Lehranstalt (technical college) in Moedling (O 49/X 37) during a period of two hours on 5 May included: 1 colonel, 16 majors, 22 captains and 17 senior and junior lieutenants, all wearing red-bordered black epaulets; 3 majors, 12 captains and 3 junior and senior lieutenants, all wearing black-bordered red epaulets; and 3 captains and 5 junior and senior lieutenants, all wearing black-bordered black epaulets. Only a few EI were observed, and they wore red-bordered black epaulets, black-bordered red epaulets and black-bordered black epaulets. Motor vehicles parked in front of the installation included passenger car driven by a soldier with black-bordered red epaulets; van-like truck; sedan driven by a soldier with black-bordered red epaulets; and sedans.
5. Jeep driven by a soldier with black-bordered red epaulets, and sedan driven by a soldier with red-bordered black epaulets, were parked in front of Hyrtl Orphanage.
